

New Columbia Professor 29

Dr. Richard N. Zare, 29 years old, has been appointed professor of chemistry at Columbia University, effective July 1. Dr. Zare, who will become Columbia's youngest full professor, is now an associate professor at the University of Colorado. Dr. Zare's special interest is in new and sophisticated studies of the interaction of molecules and radiation.

The New York Times

Published: May 19, 1969

Copyright © The New York Times